

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE

IN the course of preparing a new edition of Leland's Itinerary through England and Wales, the scattered portions relating to Wales having been brought together, it has been suggested that these now possess a certain unity and interest which would justify the issue of the Part on Wales as a separate volume.<sup>1</sup> As a man of learning and of indefatigable industry in the collection of information and notes during his travels through the realm, journeys which occupied him about six years, John Leland has always held weight as the earliest of our local antiquarians, and there are few topographers who have not consulted his pages or felt the influence of the impetus given by his patriotic labours. To the Welshman no less than the Englishman the description of local details nearly four centuries ago concerning places known to him, however trivial, proves of keen historic and often of personal interest.

John Leland, born in London in 1506, was educated at St. Paul's School and at Christ's College, Cambridge; he also studied at Oxford and Paris, becoming a practised scholar and linguist. He took holy orders before 1525, but was an absentee from the benefices to which he was later presented. Before 1530 he was Library Keeper to King Henry VIII, and three years later was made the "King's Antiquary" while prosecuting his varied schemes of learning. He is best known by the record of his notes and descriptions of England and Wales, called by John Stow <sup>1</sup> The contents of the present volume were printed by Thomas Hearne in his editions of the Itinerary (2nd ed. 1744, vols. iv, v, vii), and of the Collectanea (2nd ed. 1774, vol. iv). See notes to pages 1, 9, 38, 127, 128. The part relating to Glamorganshire was reprinted by James A. Corbet in his edition of Rice Merrick's Book of Glamorganshire Antiquities. London, 1887.

Comentaria Angliae, but christened Itinerarie of John Leland by Thomas Burton (1598), which name it has since borne.

He read the "historiographies," and local chronicles in monasteries, gaining information from many sources, some probably official, as he went along. This is evident from the way in which he describes the boundaries of hundreds, lordships and commotes, from his lists of bridges, priories, owners of property, and other incidents in the counties, and from his regular attempts at tracing the courses of rivers. And sometimes it appears, judging from the repetitions, and other indications, that he made some of these lists before journeying in the counties to which they refer. The continuity of his narrative is therefore not definite; and it has been further injured by loss of parts of the original manuscript, and the shifting of other parts or pages in consequence of damp and decay before it was bound. John Leland died in 1552, before he had put his description of England and Wales fully into shape. His manuscript collection went through various hands, and was copied in 1576 by John Stow, the London antiquary, while it was still almost entire, to which fact we owe the preservation of three "books" which were afterwards lost, as well as of portions injured by decay. Besides the Itinerary in quarto volumes, some few portions of Leland's Collectanea—four folio volumes containing a mass of notes and extracts,—may have been intended for use in the work; the extracts on the following pages 125 to 134, which fill up considerable omissions as to Wales, are from this source. These two original manuscripts by Leland and the copy by Stow (Tanner 464) are all now in the Bodleian Library, Oxford.<sup>1</sup>

The presence amidst the Welsh matter in several places of pages relating to English counties bordering on Wales seems to indicate two things, that Leland entered the country through one or perhaps two of these counties—

<sup>1</sup> From notes in the Harleian MS. 6266 in the British Museum we learn that Stow's copy was in 1657 "in y<sup>e</sup> custody of Mr. Robt. Vaughan of Hengwrt in Merioneth." Among the Hengwrt MSS. Dr. J. G. Evans recently turned over a parcel which on examination I found to be a transcript, much of it in Vaughan's own hand, made of the whole of Stow's copy of Leland's Itinerary. This is now known as Peniarth MS. 273, parts 1, 2.

Gloucestershire in the south, Cheshire in the north—and left it through Montgomeryshire, all very probable; and that he travelled through those parts which had belonged to the Welsh marches. Some of these pages, e.g. 99-104, and 65-67, treating of Gloucester, Hereford, and Shropshire, appear to have nothing to do with either of these points of view, but as those counties were actually under the jurisdiction of the Court of the Council of the Marches of Wales no doubt Leland took them together. He lived in stirring times; the Reformation and the attacks upon church property were progressing, the Valor Ecclesiasticus was made in 1534-35, the Acts for the suppression of monasteries were passed in 1536 and 1539—sometimes he mentions an abbey or a monastery as suppressed. In 1535-36 was passed the important Act (27 Hen. VIII, cap. 26) “for lawes and justice to be ministred in Wales in like fourme as it is in this realme,” by which the country was united to England, and the lordships forming the marches were distributed, partly constituting five new Welsh shires, partly added to those existing and to the English border shires. The new counties were Monmouth, Brecknock, Radnor, Montgomery, and Denbigh; Flint received additions in 1541 (33 Hen. VIII, cap. 13), the result was thirteen Welsh counties. The old shires of North Wales, viz., Anglesey, Carnarvon, and Merioneth (Venedotia) whose customs were to remain as before, formed the exemplar for five of the others.

The new order of things is reflected in some of Leland's pages. He refers to “the new Act”: “Clun was a lordship marched by itself” (p. 53); “it apperithe in the Acte what lordshipps be adjoynid to the v new shires,” while showing that Cherbury is now “adjecte” to Shropshire (p. 54); gives a reason why Llanstephan was “adject” to Pembrokeshire (p. 62), referring to the “old limites” of the same (p. 63), and the position of Llan Ðewi Brevi before the Act (p. 123). A comparison of the sections of the Act apportioning the lordships, hundreds, and commotes, with Leland's pages treating of the respective counties gives a fuller meaning to his details as to the transfer of certain lordships from one owner to another, e.g., pp. 55, 66, or of the boundaries and extent of numerous lordships which he can hardly have seen personally. The suggestion arises that he was at times furnished with official papers, and that he had access to local records, "extents," and other similar documents like those upon which the Act must have been founded, the returns for which would be fresh in the memory of many. One of these was the interesting early list of Cantrefs<sup>1</sup> and commotes, which he copied himself and inserted among other notes on Wales (here printed at the beginning, p. 5). This conjecture is strengthened by a study of the extract printed in Appendix B concerning Anglesey. Here is a rough list of "head parish churches" or rectories with their dependent chapelries throughout that island county, with a list parallel to it giving the principal geographical features, both written by a copyist (perhaps Welsh), though annotated by Leland. The list of churches and chapels corresponds so nearly to the groups of churches with their chapels, in the three deaneries of Anglesey, which were returned in 1535 for the survey of Valor Ecclesiasticus as to furnish an interesting parallel to the portion of that record, while by the divergences which occur, the two documents may correct one another.<sup>2</sup>

Leland is believed to have made his journeys in or about the years between 1536 and 1543; the references to the "New Act" of 27 Hen. VIII prove that his travels in Wales did not begin before that year, and may have been rather later, to which supposition the mention of Cherbury priory as "lately suppressid" (p. 40) adds force; and that his journeys in North Wales at least took place before 1541 is indicated by his description of Flintshire as lying north of Molesdale (p. 73), a district which was added to Flintshire by the Act of that year. And as in mentioning other suppressed houses he speaks of the great abbey of Wigmore without alluding to its suppression (p. 48) which would be under the Act of 1539, we have here a further limit of date, <sup>1</sup> A cantref or hundred was a division of the county, and contained two, three, or more commotes. Leland, who frequently describes these districts, seems to have mistaken the commote for a hundred (see pp. 79, 82, 83), yet in the Contents of Mon (perhaps written later) he explains "comot, i.e. quarta pars cantareti" (p. 129, col. 1). Pughe's Welsh Dictionary, 1832, gives two commotes to a cantref, so also the note to the word in Act 27, Hen. VIII, cap. 26, Record edition of Statutes. The ancient list gives various numbers.

so that the Welsh journeys may be fairly placed as having been made between 1536 and 1539. It is difficult to say whether he took the whole of Wales in one journey or in several; the sequence of notes and narrative is so broken that it is impossible to think that he actually saw all or even most of the places of which he writes, except on the faith of his assertion in the New Year's letter written by him to the King in 1545.<sup>1</sup> It seems however probable, after endeavouring to trace his route upon the map, that he entered Wales from two points, the one from Gloucestershire, crossing Severn by Austferry, the other from Shrewsbury; while he may also have come from Chester across the Dee after he had been round the Wirral.

I offer this map with diffidence, from the difficulty and uncertainty of truly tracing Leland's route, in the hope that a tentative sketch may help to the understanding of his scheme. Regarding many places he states facts which point out his journey; of others the descriptions induce belief that he was there, but full coherence is wanting; so that out of the repetition of notes and narrative I have pieced together what appear the personal and quite possible lines of travel. He may have seen all the small islands, I do not feel sure he was in Anglesey himself. The Table of Counties and the Index may also help in this connection. I add an Index of Families and Owners.

The text has been collated with the original, and where this is missing with Stow's copy; missing words and letters within [ ] are supplied from Stow and a few words within [ ] in italic are inserted from a copy (Bodl. Gough, Gen. Top. 2) made by Thomas Burton in 1628, who then possessed the originals. Burton made up the eighth volume of Leland's MS. from leaves which had dropped out from some quires of the other volumes (see after p. 23 note). The footnotes within brackets are mine, the identifications with occasional remarks thereto I owe to the kindness of Dr. J. Gwenogvryn

<sup>1</sup> "Yn yowr dominions . . . there is almoste nother cape nor bay, haven, creek or peere, river or confluence of rivers, breches, waschis, lakes, meres, fenny waters, montaynes, valleis, mores, hethes, forestes, chases, wooddes, cities, burges, castelles, principale manor placis, monasteries and colleges, but I have seene them." (Itinerary, Hearne's 2nd edition, 1744, vol. i, p. xxii.)

Evans. It should be noted that the Englishman found the pronunciation and spelling of Welsh names in Tudor times pretty difficult; and though for the most part Leland's spellings agree with those of the Valor and of the Act 27 Hen. VIII, cap. 26, occasionally he is the more correct.

A few words are demanded by Appendix B. What is the meaning of the word Rent placed before the names of some of the churches, and why is it not before others? Hearne prints it as it is without explanation. Comparison with the Valor shows that it certainly is the equivalent of what is there called Rectoria, and two scholars for whom I have the highest respect consider that Rent must be a mis-copying of Rect., especially as no sums of money are given in Leland's document. But the copyist apparently knew what he was about, he uses other Latin words correctly, and in one instance he contracts the word thus, Rēt (where the stroke means n) showing that he intended to write Rent. I venture on the following explanation: Rhent or rent in Pughe's Welsh Dictionary (1832) signifies an income, produce, and the senses given to the verb rhentu show that it stands for money or value coming in. Rectoria, i.e. rectory or benefice, meant legally a parish church with all its sources of income;<sup>1</sup> the chapel or chapels, built as necessity arose in the large parishes of old (Welsh or English), owed regular dues or oblations to the mother church which formed part of its revenue.<sup>2</sup> The object of the Valor Ecclesiasticus being to ascertain (among other things) the standing value of each parish, it was there given under each Rectoria, the dependent chapels being grouped beneath. The Welsh draft relating to the parishes in Anglesey prefixed the familiar word Rent to each head church in order to indicate it as the one which received the income of the parish, the mother church; the other churches or chapels, except those specially appropriated and the few free chapels, being subordinate or "annexed"; and that Leland understood it so is proved by his note (p. 134), although his reckoning of 30 such churches is wrong and Mr. Griffith's number of 31 is actually given.

In our list the parish church is also followed by its chapel or chapels, thus Rent Llanvair PwllGwyngyll cum Llan Dysilio, Rent Llanidan cum capellis Llan Deiniol vab, Llan Edwen, and Llanvair y cwmwd, and so on. The groups themselves are not in the same order as in the Valor. In certain cases the items differ: thus, Rectory Aberfraw in the record has no annexed chapel, but this list gives it Capell Mair, Tal y llyn (p. 130), which is assigned by the Valor to Rectory Llan Dyvrydog (p. 133); Llan Allgo (p. 133) is the chapel to Rectory Llan Eigrad in the Valor, reversing their rank; the parts of Llan Jestyn, which, according to the Valor (vol. iv, p. 418), comprised Llan Ewida and Tynsilio are apparently scattered in this list, the one as Rent Ll. Gwrda, the other as Ll. Vihangel y Tinsiloy (Din Silwy, p. 133, 134). The group of churches belonging to the priory of Penmon (two less than in the Valor) viz., St. Katerine Llanvaes, Rent Ll. Dona (not a Rectory in the Valor), Penrhos Llugwy and Bodewryd, are not here placed together. These and a few other divergences may indicate that the list is previous to the Valor and perhaps not faultless.

TABLE OF WELSH COUNTIES.

[† These lists occupy two leaves in Leland's MS. v., fos. 16 and 17, but they have been reversed in binding. Stow copies them correctly. The same lists with various spellings are found in one of the Cotton MSS., Domitian A VIII., in the British Museum, which being written about 1400, is older than Leland, and may have been copied by or for him. Burton omits these lists altogether. As the lists are of value to Welsh students and have some variations, both copies are printed here, first, that from the Cotton MS., corrected by Dr. Evans; second, Leland's copy, with the corrections by Sir John Price on that MS.

MARKET TOWNES IN BRECKNAUCHSHIRE.*

Brenauch.

Stow, v.
fo. 115.
Brecknock-
shire.

[* The following pages 10-12, l. 8, and p. 53, l. 20 to p. 65, treating of the counties from Brecon to Pembrokeshire (ending "3 miles from Tunge"), are found in Stow near the beginning of his copy of Leland's vol. vii. They occur between the notes on Bedford- and Worcestershires and those on Shropshire, and that this was the order in Leland's original quire is proved by the appearance of the leaves. In Leland's vol. vii., fos. 7-31 are missing; fos. 22-31 of his vol. v. not only fit ten of the missing fos. in figuring and in order of subject according to Stow, but the marks left by damp upon these leaves exactly match those upon fo. 32 and subsequent leaves in vol. vii. They were evidently placed in vol. v. when the manuscript was bound, perhaps to bring the Welsh notes together. These ten fos. 22-31 were thus printed by Hearne in his vol. v., pp. 19-29 (here pp. 57-67; they treat of the counties Carmarthen, Pembrok and Shropshire). But, though he was then using Stow, Hearne only printed the previous notes on the counties Brecon to Cardigan (part of the lost fos. 7-21) when he reached vol. vii (pp. 14-18). The references to fos. by Hearne and his editor in this confusing part are wrong. Stow apparently did not copy the passages from "Corbet of Morton Corbet" to "Chorleton of Wombridge uncl[e to] . . .", pp. 65-67.

In the present edition the sentences on Montgomeryshire, pp. 11, 12, have by an oversight been transposed from their right place on p. 53.]

RADENORSHIRE.

Radnor-
shire.

New Radnor towne hathe be metly well wallyd, and in the walle appere the ruines of iii. gates. There is an olde churche stondyng now as a chapell by the castle. Not very farre thens is the new paroche churche buildyd by one William Bachefeld and Flory his wyfe.

There goithe by the towne, as I remember, a broket cawlyd Somergil.

The buildyng of the towne in some parte meatly good, in moste part but rude, many howsys beinge thakyd. The castle is in ruine, but that a pece of the gate was a late amendyd. The towne was defacyd in Henry the fowrthe dayes by Owen Glindowr.

Presteine, in Walche caullyd Llanandre,<sup>d</sup> is a very good market of corne, to the whiche very many folks of Melen-

In Low Eluel be 2. lordshippis, Abrehedon Castel the Kyng's hard by Wy. Paynes Castle about a 2. miles from Wy banke.

Thus in bothe Elueldes be 3. lordships.

Low Eluelde endithe in Wy banke right agayne Clifford on the other banke of Wy.

Northton lordship a membar of Radenor. At Northton selfe is a litle pilet or turret.

In Melennith apere greate ruines of 2. castles. The one is cawlid Tynbot, set on a stepe crage a 3. miles from the abbay of Comehire, the whiche is also in Melennith. The other is cauld Keuenilles on the ryver of . . . , now downe; it longyd to the Duke of Yorke. Rayader lordshipe longyd to the Duke of Yorke, it hathe nothar market towne, nor castle (as far as I cowld know). This Rayder is countyd as a member of the lordshipe of Radenor.

Rayder, Comothuder and Wartreman liethe foote to foote.

POWYSLANDE, MOUNTGOMERIKSHIRE.

Montgomerike, in Walche Treualduine,<sup>c</sup> standithe a mile from Severn banke, and is servid with small rills cominge frome the hills hard by. The soyle of the ground of the towne is on mayne slaty roke, and especially the parte of the towne hillinge toward the castell, now a-late reedified, whereby hathe bene a parke. Great ruines of the waulle yet apere ad vestigia of iii. gates thus cawlyd, Kedewen Gate, Chyrbyry Gate, Arturs Gate, Kery Gate. In the waulls yet remayne broken towrets, of the whiche the whit towre is now moste notable. One paroche churche in Mountgomerike. There liethe a good plentifull valley by the towne of corne and grace.

WENTLLUGH [IN MONMOUTH].

fo. 51. *
Monmouth-
shire.

Wentllug<sup>c</sup> is devidid from Ventissa by este with the ryver of Wiske, by south with the Severn Se, by west with the ryver of Remny to the very hedde of it, and toward the north northe est lye the hilles of High Wenteland.

The lenght of Wentllugh<sup>c</sup> is from the Severn Se to the hed of the lordship of Meridith, that is to say from south to northe about a xx. mile.

Where it is most brodest from est to west it is not countid by estimation above 8. miles, and in diverse places lesse.

The soile by south toward Severn is sumwhat low and fulle of dikes to drene it. Ther is lightly great plenty of benes, and in divers [places †] it berith al other maner of corne.

And this low ground is from the causey or high-way that goit from Newport to Pont Remny by south to the Severne Se. The north side of the same high-way is stille higher and higher to the northe.

There is very litle wood yn this low part of Wentllughe, except at Parke Behan<sup>d</sup> 3. miles out of Newport, thorough the which the high-way lyith to Caerdif.

Castelle Behan<sup>e</sup> is a litle without the south side of this park, and is in ruine. It longid to the Duke of Buxkingham.

This park has nother dere nor pale now, it is the Kinges by the lordship of Newport; and at Tredegar, wher Mr. William Morgan, a man of 300. markes of landes by yere

Such part of Wenllugh as lyith up toward Cairleon is well pastured and woddi.

Such part as lyith from Pont Remny along on the est ripe of Remny to Bedwes paroche vi. miles of by land ys much woddy, and in sum places bytwixt, as first in Llanuihengle paroche, and then in Maghen paroche joining to it is metely good corne. Ponte Remny is a 2. miles from the Severn Se. Ther is a village by it caullid Rumney in Englisch, in Walsch Tredelerch.

Thens on Remny ripe a mile upper is a fair valley caullid fo. 52. Diffrin Risca, going a 3. or 4. mile upward on the water, plentiful of wodde as it were a forest ground, myngelid with feldes, but having litle corne.

And from the hedde of this valley it is upward on Remny a 4. miles to Eggluis Tider uab Hohele, by rughe hilles and wilde valeis and plenty of wood. The hedde of Remney River is a 3. or 4. miles above this yn the hilles of High Wentelande. *Fanum

Thens cumme many springes, and taking one botom the brooke is caullid Kayach, and thens going into Diffrin Risca it is augmentid with Risca a brooke cumming ynto it oute of a paroche caullid Eggluis Ilan, and then doth it al bere the name of Risca. Eggluis Ilan is yn Singhenith<sup>b</sup> in Glamorgan-shir a 4. mile of from Diffrin Risca. And cumming to Bedwes paroche it is caullid Remny, and by the same name into the Severne Se.

In the midle ground bytwixt Remny and Ebouith Ryver on the north side of the high way to Pont Remny the ground for the most parte is hilly, better for catelle then corne. And there is a very high hille caullid Tuinbarkum.

The ryver of Ebouith<sup>a</sup> risith yn a flat north montayne of High Wencelande, and strait cummith into a valley caullid Diffrin Serowy.<sup>c</sup>

Ebowith goith into Wisk a mile and a half beneth Newport, and half a mile from the haven mouth of Wiske.

fo. 53.

Newport is but 2. miles from Cairleon. From Neuport to the place wher Ebowith goith yn to Wisch Haven a good mile and a halfe. And then more then half a mile to the haven mouth.

The bridges of Cairleon and Newport be booth of wood.

From the haven mouth of Wisch to the mouth of Remny, wher no haven is or cumming yn meete for shippes, a vi. miles. On this shore is no very notable thing. The bankes of it be clyvid inough to defend the se for raging into the low ground of Wenceland.

Newport is a bigge towne, wherof that parte where the paroche chirch is stondith on a hille. The chirch is S. Guntle,<sup>b</sup> Olave in Englisch.

Ther is a great stone gate by the bridge at the este ende of the toun, a nother yn the midle of the town as in the High strete to passe thorough, and the 3. at the west end of the toune: and hard without it is the paroche chirch. The fairest of the toun is al yn one* streate. The toun is yn ruine. Ther was a house of religion by the key beneth the bridg. The castelle is on the este side of the toun above the bridge.

Morgan the chifeste of landes hath a very fair place at Tredeger, and a nother in the toun of Newporte.

There is a nother of the Morgans a man of meane landes dwelling [at] Newport.

There is a nother of the Morgans dwelling by Remny at Maghen,<sup>c</sup> having a fair house. He had bene a man of fair landes, if his father had not devidid it partly to other of his sunnes.

And this province or cuntry is often caullid Morganhog.

I take Moregan<sup>d</sup> to have the name of More, that is to say the se, onto the shore wherof it lyth.

The kefinnithes<sup>e</sup> (confinia §) of Glamorgan ly thus.

Remny is the marche on the est side of it.

Cremline a little broke is the march of the west part of it.

The Severne Se boundith it from the mouth of Remny to the mouth of Cremlin.

The rootes of the Blake Mountein marchith it by northe.

From Pont Remny to the forde of Cremlin brooke, a mile from Swansey, is to the nerest way a 23. miles. Thus, a mile to [Cair]dif. To S. Nicolas village 4 m[iles.] To fo. 55.
Cowbridge 4. miles. To Wenny Bridge, wher is a little

COMMOTES IN GLAMORGANSHIR.

Kibworth<sup>a</sup> lyith, from the mouthe of Remny up to an hille in the same commote caullid Keven On, a 6. miles from the mouth of Remny. This hille goith as a waulle over-thwart betwix the rivers of Thaue<sup>b</sup> and Remny. Glamorgan shire.

A 2. miles from this hille by south, and a 2. miles from Cairdif, be vestigia of a pile or maner place decayed at Eg-luis Newith in the paroch of Landaf.

In the south side of this hille was born Richard William alias Crumweile yn the paroche of Llan Isen. (See p. 137.)

If Cairdif be not a commote in it self, it semith to be in Kibworth.

Kibworth goith by the shore from the mouthe of Remny to the mouthe of Taue a 2. miles and more. Splot a maner place longging to Baudrem, lyith from the mouthe of Remny on the shore, and is taken as land holden of the Bisshop of Landaf, and resortith to the Bisshopes Court. So it is in the commote of Kibworth, but not of the Court of it.

Kibworth cummith from the mouthe of Taue up stil by the est ripe of it a good half mile above Cairdif, and there Landaf commote taketh the est ripe, and so kepit on stil to above Landaph Bridge, and then Kibworth taketh the est ripe of Taue agayn, and so goith up to the hille of Keven On and ther is the kefinith of Kibworth.

In Kibworth a plain soile, saving Keven On, is good rye, barley, and otes, but little whete. The beste wood in Kibworth is in Keven On as it were a forest grounde, and Cairdif is partely servid thens with wood. Ther be medowes by Remny and Taue rivers in this commote.

Castelle Gough al yn ruine no bigge thing but high. It longith to the King and standith by Keven On.

Huhkaihac strecchith up on Taue by the est ripe from Kaihach to Morlays Castelle, and 2. miles upward by north north est to Kaedrayne, wher the kefinnith is betwixt High-Wenceland, Breknocshir and Huhkaihach parte of Singhenet.

Morelays Castelle<sup>c</sup> standith in a good valley for corn and grasse, and is on the . . . ripe of Morelais Brooke.

This castelle is in ruine and longith to the King.

Morlays riveret cummith by north est out of Brekenocshir hilles toward High-Wenceland, and so to Morelays Castelle, and about a myle lower in a paroche caullid Martyr<sup>d</sup> it goith into the est ripe of Taue (Martyr Teduil).

The commote of Landaf beginnith at the west side of the mouth of Taue, and so rennith up by the marschy shore on Severn to the mouthe of Ley<sup>e</sup> River, of sum yn Englisch caullid Ele. The mouthes of these 2. ryvers be about a mile a sundre. The Bishop's land in this commot is caullid Ter escop.<sup>f</sup>

This commote goith up apon the weste shore of Taue a quartre of a mile above Landaf Bridge to a place caullid Clauthe (Diche) Cunstable.<sup>g</sup> And this is a ii. miles from the mouth of Taue, and sumwhat more.

ESTE THAWĀN COMMOT.

Est Thawān by south lyith on the Severn shore. From the mouth of Lay, wher Penarth Pointe standith on the west side of it, to the mouthe of Thawān' Ryver an eight miles: agayne the whiche mouth is the next passage to Minheved in Somersetshire. This trajectus is over Severn xvi. miles.

Penarth is an hille or foreland into the Severn Se.

A mile and a half above it is Scilley, <sup>f</sup> a praty havenet or socour for shippes. And here rennith Scylley a praty brooke into the se, and ther is a village caullid Scylley, scant half a mile from this haven muth: and the brook rennith thoroug the midle of it. The castelle of Greneston is 3. quarters of a mile lower on Scilley broke, and it stondith on the side of an hille a stone caste from the est ripe of Scilley. It is al in ruine saving one high tower. The Lord Herbe[r]t is owner of it.

The castel of Dinas Poys* is almost a mile lower, and stondith on a little hille within a stone caste of the broke on the west side. This castelle is al in ruine, and longith to the King. Scylley village is scant a mile lower. So that the course of the hole water is a 3. miles from the hedde to the se.

There is good corne and medow on booth sides of Scylley brooke, and good wood of bothe sides [till]† it cum to Dinas Poys. Lower to the se is none on it.

From Scylley mouthe to Aberbarrey, wher cummith a little rylle of fresch water to the Severn, is aboue a mile.

The hedde of this rylle is scant a mile of by north est in a playn ground.

On this bekke stondith the castelle of Barrey aboue a quarter of a mile beyond the west ripe of it. This castelle [* Fo. 61 ends with the words "On this brok." Fo. 62 has been taken out and is found, like others missing, in MS. vol. viii. paged 21, 22; printed here between *—*. As in the other cases, the old figures can be read beneath the later. What is worse is that the rest of the figures of the leaves in the MS. vol. iv. following fo. 61 have been altered and written over by the same hand, making what is really fo. 63 into 62, 64 into 63, and so on. Thus the foliation given by Hearne and his editor from fo. 62 to fo. 76 is wrong. In making up vol. viii. Burton inserted a leaf after the leaf 62 of vol. iv., on which he copied a few lines of the continuation on fo. 63, and then added the paragraph as to Gasper, Duke of Bedford, which is the last in MS. vol. iv., fo. 77 (after p. 38). fo. 63. Right againe this brooke mouth lyth Barrey Isle. The passage into it at ful se is a flite shot over, as much as the Tamise is above the bridge. At low water ther is a broken causey to go over, or els* over the shallow stremelet of Barrey brooke on the sandes.

The isle is about a mile in cumpace, and hath very good corne, grasse and sum wood. The ferme of it worth a x. li. a yere.

There ys no dwelling in the isle, but ther is in the midle of it a fair litle chapel of S. Barrok, wher much pilgrimage was usid.

Half a mile and more beyonde Aber Barrey is the mouth of Come Kydy.* This broke risithe flat north a mile and an half from the place wher it goith ynto the Severn Se. There is no notable building on this rylle. The soile of boothie side of the ril in this valley hath good corn, grasse and wood.

From Kiddey mouth, wher no enteraunce is for shippes, to the mouthe of Thawän a 3. miles by very principal good corn ground. At the mouth of Thawän shippe-lettes may cum ynto the haven mouth.

The march by west. The west marche goith up by Thawän side on the est ripe almost to Cowbridge, and that is a 4. miles of, and this ground is low abouthe the ripe side, and ful of medowis and pasture grounde: and in sum places half a mile of from the ripe is summe woodde.

Half a mile from the mouth of Thawän there cummith in by the est ripe of it a brooke caullid Kensan.<sup>b</sup>

The castelle of Fonmone standith on a litle hille in Penmark paroche, a quarter of a mile by est from the mouth of Kensan.

This castelle yet stondith and longith to Sir John St. John.

This Kensan<sup>b</sup> hath 2. heddes, wheroft the north est is caullid Nantbrane,<sup>c</sup> the hedde wheroft is in the paroch of Lluen Lithan.<sup>d</sup>

Then thorough Llancarouan <sup>b</sup> village 3. quarters of a mile. Then a quarter of a mile to the confluens wher the hole stremme is caullid Kensan. On both sides of this arme is good corn and gresse.

To cross over from Lancarouan to the nex part of Thawän is a mile.

The commot of Est Thawän cummith up by est from the mouth of Lay <sup>c</sup> on the west ripe of Lay, first to Cogan Pille almost a mile of, wher is a fair maner place on the ripe side longging to Mr. Herebert of Swansey, and then to Ponte Lecwith of stone scant a mile. Then to Pontlay, alias Elebridg, <sup>d</sup> of stone, wher Landaf commot cummith for a space over Lay on booth sides of the bridge. Then cummith in againe on Lay west ripe Est Thawän commote at S. Fagan's, wher be not past 2. or 3. houses of the village on that side, but they stande beyond the stone bridge on the est side of Lay, and there is the paroche, and the castel of S. Fagan standing in the midle of the village, and within a stone caste of the river.

And here marke that Est Thawän yn this place occupiyth a 3. long mile by est north est on this ripe to a place caullith Pont Rithsarn in Miskin.*

The castelle of S. Fagan standith on a little hille: and a part of it yet standith. It was about a 60. yere ago in the handes of one Davy Mathew: and then it cam by heires general to diverse copartioners. Baynon of the Forest of Dene hath a part of it. The paroch chirch of S. Fagan is now of our Lady: but ther is yet by the village a chapelle of S. Fagan sumtime the paroch chirch.

Pont Rithsarn is about a mile upward from Lampeder on Lay.

Now to cum agayn to the west ripe of Lay over S. Fagan's bridge. S. George a village lyth 3. quarters of a mile up-warde on the ripe, and there is a castelle hard by the ripe on the west north west side of the village. This castelle stondith on plaine ground. It longgid to the Male-Infantes, wherof one was alyve within this 40. yeres. The castelle is now the Kinges: and one Roger Herebert a bastard dwellith in it.

And Este Thawän goith yet a 2. miles upper on this ripe to a paroche caullid Pendiluen,<sup>a</sup> and that is in the commot of Tier Stuart.<sup>b</sup> So that this upperst part of Est Thawän on the west ripe of Lay is right agay[n Lam]peder on the est

There is a castelle almost stonding on an even grounde half a mile from Laniltute by est north est caullid Llanüais.<sup>b</sup> It is almost al doun. It longgith now to the King. It was in hominum memoria the Maleinfauntes, ther communely caullid the Malifauntes. There cummith a litle bekke within a stone caste of the castelle, and rennith on the west side of it. It risith by gesse halfe a mile by north west above the castelle of Laniuays: and passing by this castelle it goith into Colhow water by likelihod.

From Colehow aboute a mile beyond upper by south west on Severn is S. Dinothes,<sup>c</sup> a castel. It stondith on a meane hille a quarter of a mile from the Severn Se. In the which space bytwixt the castelle and the Severn is a parke of falow dere. There is a nother park of redde deere more by northe west from the castelle. The parkes booth and the castelle long to Stradeling a gentilman of very fair landes in that country. Thins from the Severn shore againe S. Dinothes to the mouth of Alein a 3. miles. On the west side of the ripe of this brooke enterith Ter Brennine.

This Alein risith by north est up into the land at a place caullid Llesbroinuith<sup>d</sup> (Scirpetum), about a 4. miles above the place wher it cummith by it self into Severn.

Here marke that from the mouth of Alein to the mouth of Oxor River<sup>e</sup> is a 3. miles along by south, and this is countid as a lordship by it self, and it was Syr Maurice Lounder's landes in King Henry the 2. days. Now it longith to the King by the dukedom of Lancaster. In this part of the shore is only a manor place caullid Dounereuen<sup>f</sup> about the midle way. It longid a late to Boteler. The towne of Chepstow hath bene very strongly waulled as yet welle doth appere. The wa[ulles] began at the ende of the great bridge over Wy, and so cam to the castel, the which yet standeth fayr and strong not far from the ruin of the bridge. In the castel ys one tower, as I hard say, be the name of Longine. The town now hath but one paroche chirche. The celle of a Blake Monke or two of Bermundesey by London was lately there suppressed. Sum say that Cair Lion should be in Base Venteland, sum say nay. The Welschemen say that Cair Lion is but viii. myles from Chepstow, but in deade it may be counted xii. Englisch myles. It stondeth magnificently on the farther side of Wische,<sup>b</sup> one of the principal ryvers of South-Wales. So that very great shypes might wel cum now to the town, as they did in the Romaynes tyme, but that Newport Bridge is a lette. Nevertheles bygge botes cummeth to the towne. There is good corn, as whete grounde, about Llaneinys, metely woddyd.

Lanvair Vade[llen] is much baren, [but] for otes withe [great] labor. No wood but turfe. Ful of hilles and bogges.

The paroche self of Denebiche is plentiful of corne and gresse, but no great wood.

Ise Dulesse<sup>f</sup> is good for corne as whete, rye, peason and benes, and hath very good fine pasture and medois, and hath litle wast ground yn it, and hath good woodde as in the lesse parke longgng to Denbighe, and yn other places. DENBIGH TOUNE.

After that King Edward had extinctid the Prince of Wales, and had holely al Wales in his possession he much studied to the fortification especially of North Wales, and the marches of it. And by this meane Lacy a man of greate estimation about Edward the I. had the land of Denby gyven onto hym.

And I have hard say that it was partly in consideration that he maried in the bloode of the Prince of North Wales. Lacy was a great lord marcher afore in Ewislard <sup>a</sup> bering the name of Lacye.

This Lacy firste began the toun of Denbigh, walling it and making a castelle there. Afore his tyme I cannot lerne that there was other toun or castelle.

The toune and [cast]el of Denbighe [stand]ith on a [craggy] hille, and is nere [a mile in cumpace,] and ys pene orbiculari figura. The castelle lyith south on the toune : and the toun lyith to the castelle by north and est.

fo. 60. In the toun be but 2. gates, the Escheker Gate, and the Burges Gate. In the first was the lordes court kept: and in the other the burgesis. The Eskeker Gate lyith playne west, and the Burgeses Gate plain north.

These ii. gates as the cumpace of the waulle goith be a great flite shot one from the other : and betwixt them in the waulle is never a tower.

And from the Eskeker* Gate to the castel is never a towre: but ther is a galery out of the castel into it.

These towers be in the toune waulle by est from the Burgeses Gate to the south est side of the castelle.

There be 2. rounde toures beside.

There hath beene diverse rowes of streates withyn the wald towne, of the which the most part be now doone in maner, and at this tyme there be scant 80. howsolders. There is a goodly and large chapel of ease in the old toun, of S. Hilarie, wither yet moste of the new toun yet cumme.

I have not yet lernid the certente how this wallid toun decayed withyn, wither it were by fier or for lak of water, wheroft there is litle or none, or for lak of good caryage into the toun standing sumwhat high and on rokky ground, I cannot surely telle.

But the towne of Denbigh now occupied and yoining neere to the old toun hath beene totally made of later tyme, and set much more to commodite of cariage and water by many welles in it. And the encrease of this was the decay of the other. [At this present tyme the newe is 3. times as bigge as the oulde, and is a mile . . . . . and it lyeth all in one streete . . . . . and in the market place well builded, which is fayre, and large, and paved of late yeares, the confluence to the market on Tewesday is exceeding great. St. Marcellus a mile of was paroche chirche to the ould towne, and so it is to the newe.]*

There is a chapelle of ease in the midle of the new towne, of S. Anne. One Fleming was the builder of this, and yet it is caullid Capelle Fleming, and is of a good largenes. upward on the same side of the ryver that Herford doth; yet is yt almost a myle fro the ripe of Wy. This towne is far more auncyent then Herford, and was celebrated yn the Romaynes tyme, as appereth by many thinges, and especially by antique mony of the Caesars very often found withyn the towne, and yn plowghyng abowt; the which the people ther cawlleth Duarfes Mony. The cumpace of Kenchestr hath bene by estimation as much as Herford, excepting the castel, the which at Herford ys very spaciose. Peaces of the walles and turrets yet appere prope fundamenta, and more should have appered if the people of Herford town and other therabowt had not yn tymes paste pulled down muche and pyked owt of the best for therre buildinges. Of late one Mr. Brainton buylding a place at Stretton a myle from Kenchestr dyd fetch much tayled stone therre toward his buildinges. They told me ther that one M. Lingham ys owner both of Kenchester and Sutton. By lykelyhod men of old tyme went by Kenchester to Hay, and so to Breknoc and Cair Mardyn.* The place wher the town was ys al over growen with brambles, hasyles, and lyke shrubbes. Neverthelesse here and there yet appere ruines of buyldinges, of the which the folisch people cawle on the King of Feyres Chayre. Ther hath ben found nostra memoria lateres Britannici, et ex eisdem canales, aquae ductus, tessellata pavimenta, fragmentum catenulae aureae, calcar ex [auro],* by side other strawng thinges. To be short, of the decaye of Kenchestr Herford rose and florishyd. Without fayle Herford ys better set as hard apon Wy Ryver, and so nerer to the pastures. But I cannot perceyve that Hereford had any great begynning afore King Offas tyme, the which be al likelyhod had a palace at Sutton.

Sutton ys a iiiii. myle from Hereford, wher appere notable ruines of sum auncyent, and great building. It is thowght ther and a great lykelyhod is that it was sumtyme the mansion of King Offa, at such tyme as Kenchestr stood, or els Herford was abegynnyng.

Breknocshire is very montanius, and in sum place very wooddy; netherthelesse in the valles fruteful of corn, and especially of pastures, for the Walschmen yn tymes past, as they do almost yet, did study more to pasturage then tylling, as favorers of their consuete idilness. Among al the montaynes of that shire Blak Montayne is most famose, for he strecchith, as I have lerned, his rootes on one side within a iii. or v. myles of Monemuth, and on the other side as nere to Cairmerdin.* Though this be al one montayne, yet many partes of him have sundry names. Owt of this montayne springeth the heddes of iii. famose ryvers, that be diverse cowrsys thorowgh Sowth Wales at the last cum ynto the Severn Se. Within the toune is but one poore paroche. In the suburbe hard by Wy is a paroche chirch meately fair. Ther is also in the suburbe a chapel wher on a Sunday I hard Messe. Not far from the paroche chirch in the suburbe is a great rounde hille of yerth cast up by mennes hondes other for a wynd mille to stond apon, or rather for sum fortres of bataille.

The toun of the Hay yet hath a market, but the toun within the waulles is wonderfully decaied. The ruine is adscribibid to Oene Glindour.

One shewid me in the town the ruines of a gentilman's place caullid Waulwine,<sup>a</sup> be whose meanes Prince Lluelin was sodenli taken at Buelth Castel, and ther beheddid, and his hedde sent to the Kinge.

Dulesse<sup>b</sup> a pretty river rising in the montannes about a iii. myles from Hay cummeth even thorough the toun, and strait into Wy without the est gate of the town. In feldes hard by in ploughyng hath be founde offtimes numismata Romanorum, the wich ther communely be caullid the Jewis mony.

The tounne longgid to the Duke of Bokingham. It perteinith now to the Lord Staford his [sonne.] Artures Hille, and summe other of the [bank]nes veri manifestly apere to a man loking out [of th]e w[est gate] of Hay.

Cumming from Brekenok toward Llanameueri<sup>a</sup> within lesse then iii. miles I enterid into the great forest of Brekenok,* wher menne of late were not wont to passe without tolle of mony, and so thorough that a iii. ## IN WALES. PART VI 115

But or I cam to Whitland I passid over the brooke of Carmarthen shire. Venny.

As I here say ther is a forest by Llanandeuery.*

But bytwixt Cairmardin and Whitland is in no place such plenti of wood as is at Whitland self standing in a vast wood as in a wildernes. Moch ground otherwise and hilles abowt hit baren of wood.

From Whitland passing toward Llanfith <sup>b</sup> half a mile owt of Whitland I passid over the little broke of Marleis, and so continuing my journey by meane hilles and dales cam to Llanfith wherby the Bisshop of S. David's hath a place of stoone after castel fascion stonding on . . . Brooke that goith to the salt water by Penbroke. <sup>Pembroke-shire.</sup>

Bytwixt Whitland and Llanfeth is xii. Walsche miles, containing abowt an xviii. Englisch miles.

Al the hy way betwixt Whitland and Llanfeth is almost hethy, yet on everi side [sum]what distant I sau in valleis and on hille sides good corne.

But the ground is sumwhat baren of wood, [as] al Pen-brookshire almost is, except wher a few parkes be. But the ground in divers partes of Penbrokeshire berith se coles, wherwith communely the people make fier and with firres, as thei do also about Cairmardine, though ther be better plenti of wood. Bi one of thes coles pittes being a iii. miles from Llanfith I cam.

Also almost in the midde wai betwixt Whitland and Llanfeth I saw a place on the right hand as it wer a castel distant by estimation a iii. miles.

And within a ii. miles of Llanfeth on the right hond I saw the castel of Carew repairid or magnificently buildid by Syr Rhese ap Thomas. It stondith by a creke of Milford Haven.

From Llanfeth to Penbrok is but a good mile.

Penbroke standith upon an arme of Milford, the wich about a mile beyond the towne creketh in that so that it almost peninsulath the toune that standith on a veri maine rokki ground.

The toune is welle waullid and hath iii. gates by est, west and north, of the wich the est gate is fairest and strongest, having afore hit a compasid tour not rofid, in the entering wherof is a portcolys ex solidio ferro.

The castel stondith hard by the waul on a hard rokke, and is veri larg and strong, being doble wardid. In the utter ward I saw the chaumbre wher King Henri the VII. was borne, in knowlege wherof a chymmeney is new made with the armes and badges of King Henri the VII. In the botom of the great stronge rownd tower in the inner ward is a meruelus vault caullid the Hogan. The toppe of this round towr is gatherid with a rose of stone almost in conum, the top wherof is keverid with a flat mille stone.

In the toune be a ii. paroche chirchis, and one in the suburbe.

Montaine a celle of Blak Monkes in the suburbe is suppressid.

The toune hath bene welle buildyd,* and the est suburbe hath bene almost as great as the toun, but now it is totally yn ruine.

fo. 75. Cumming from Llanfeth towarde Tinbighe* I rode by a ruinus waulle of a parke sumtime longging to Syr Rhese, now voide of dere. In the parke is veri litle or no hye wood, but shrubbis and fyrris, like as is in the ii. parkes about Carew, waullid with stones.

The Chirch of S. Florein<sup>b</sup> and tounlet is in a botom by the parke.

A litle beyond this as more then half way betwixt Pembroke and Tinbigh apperid the castel of Mainorpirrhe<sup>c</sup> a mile of on the right hande. It standith as it were betwixt to pointing hillettes, betwene the wich the Severn Se gulfithe in almost the length of a quarter of a mile.

Thens to Tinbigh.

Tinbigh † town stondith on a main rokke, but not veri hy, and the Severn Se so gulfeth in about hit, that at the ful se almost the thirde part of the toune is inclosid with water. The toune is strongeli waullid, and welle gatid, everi gate having his portcolys ex solidio ferro. But that gate that ledith to Cairmardin ward is most semeliest, as circulid without Pembroke-shire. with an embatelid but open rofid towr, after the fascion of the east gate of Penroke. Without this gate is a preti suburbe.

In the middes of the town is a faire paroche chirch.

The toun it selfe lakkith fresch water, wherfore utuntur importata.

From Tinbigh I went to the cole pittes on a hille topp ii. miles of, not far from the Severne shore. And a good mile beyond them I roode thorough a wood not veri greate, but yet the fairest that I remembre that I saw in Penbrokshire.

Thens I enterid again into Whitland way.

The nerest trajectus into Caldey is almost in the midde way bytwixt Mainorpirrhe and Tinbiche at a poynlet, and ther it is litle above a mile.

[Beinge against Mainorpirrhe] I saw Lundey lying far of in the Severn Se.

Cumming from Cairmardine toward Llandewibreui, a mile Carmarthen-shire. owt of Cairmardine, I passid over Guily River,<sup>a</sup> and so foloud the curse of hit, having yt in sighte by the riding of iii. or v. miles, marking divers little brokes going into hit as into the botom of the valley.

Then riding per aliquot miliaria I began to se Tyue<sup>b</sup> River, and kept it stil in sight, riding stille by stony hilles and valleys, and passing thorough a wood of okes caullid . . . . and after by a preti Llin on the right hond cawllid Gogurne, and so leving also hard on the right hond Pencragan,<sup>c</sup> a rokke so caullid bycawse it is a rounde coppid hil of stonis, cam a litle of into a vle cottage standing in a vale by Tiue to bayte.

Thens I rode to Llandewy Breui<sup>d</sup> v. miles of (Landewi, as Cardigan-shire. sum say, caullid Breui, bycause it stondith on Breuy Brooke), betwixt the which places I saw a preti Llin not far from Tyui side caullid Llinpeder,<sup>e</sup> sumwhat bigger then Llingogurn; but I saw out of neither of them any notable issue of water.

I saw also a bridge or ii. over Tiue.

Landewi Brebui is but a simple or poore village. I passid over a little broke to entre into hit. It is set among montaines on every [side *] but by west, wher is the valley of Tiue. Tiue River is about half a mile of. The collegiate chirch of prebendaries standith sumwhat apon a hy ground, but it is rude. Thens to Tregaron ii. miles, wher is a chirch standin apon a round coppe of cast yerth.

By rennith a broke caullid [Brennig †] . . . .

So passing under a hy hille side, I saw hard by on the lift honde a great fenny more, owt of the wich the inhabitantes therabout digge turfes for fier, and by the same fenne is a fair llin cawlid Llinridde ii. miles from Strateflur.

Strateflure<sup>a</sup> ‡ is set round about with montanes not far distant, except on the west parte, wher Diffrin Tyue<sup>b</sup> is. Many hilles therabout hath bene well woddid, as evidently by old rotes apperith, but now in them is [almost no woodde.]

fo. 76. The causses be these ; first the wood cut doun was never copisid, and this hath beene a great cause of destruction of wood thorough Wales. Secondly after cutting doun of wooddys the gottys hath so bytten the young spring that it never grew but lyke shrubbes. Thirddely men for the nonys destroied the great woddis that thei shuld not harborow theves.

The chirch of Stratefleire is larg, side ilid and crosse ilid. By is a large cloyster, the fraty and infirmitori be now mere ruines. The coemiteri wherin the cunteri about doth buri is veri large, and meanely waullid with stoone. In it be xxxix. great hue trees. The base court or camp afore the abbay is veri fair and large. The fundation of the body of the chirch was made to have bene 60. foote lengger then it is now.

[* Leland seems to have intended side. Not in Stow.]

[† J. G. Evans. The town of Tregaron is situated on the Berwyn river, and the church is on the banks of the Brennig.]

[‡ A marginal note here, being at the bottom corner of fo. 75, is much torn. Hearne could read a few letters not now visible: “[Strat] flier of sum [ca]ullid bycause . . . . bytwixt it and Flere [Broke]s. of sum . . . . it stode in the . . . . .”]

Thens I went a good half mile by Tiue Vale, and a mile and a half up the craggi and stoni montaines to Llin Tyue,<sup>a</sup> and ii. miles beyound hit, passing over Clarduy, to Cregnaulin.<sup>b</sup> If I had goone from thens a mile of to a hy hille I might have sene Penlinmon,<sup>c</sup> then distant a v. miles. The hilles bytwyxt Linne Tyue and Cragnaugllin were not in sight so stony as the hilles bytwyxt Stratfeler and Llin Tyue.

I standing on Creggenaugllin saw in no place within sight no woodd but al hilly pastures.

From Stratfeler I roode by rank, hylli and valley pastures a ii. Walsche miles, and so passing over Maknant<sup>d</sup> a wild brooke renning on rokkes and a nother whos name I remembre not, cam to the thirde caullid Nantluys,<sup>e</sup> and therby on the right hond I saw an hille caullid Crag John, and so over Melewen<sup>f</sup> River that therby in sight went ynto Ustwith<sup>g</sup> River.

Or I cam to Melewen I had ride bi the space of a iii. miles in Comeustwith.<sup>h</sup>

From Melewen I enterid to the valley of Ustwith, so narowly with rokky montaines enclosid, that in wynter the stremme occupieth al the botom of the valley.

First entering this botom I saw on the right hond an hille caullid Me[n]thduy.<sup>i</sup>

The first river be side Tyue that I passid over was Clardue, that is to say Blak Clare, no great stremme but cumming thoroug cragges. In the farther side of hit I saw ii. veri poore cotagis for somer dayres for catel, and hard by were ii. hillettes, thorough the which Clarduy passith, wher they fable that a gigant striding was wont to wasch his hondes, and that Arture killid hym. The dwellers say also that the gigant was buried therby, and shew the place.

Clarduy risith about half a mile from that place in a mares, and rennyng ii. Walsch milys in al goith into Clar- White Clar.

It is fedde fro hyer places with a litle broket, and issueth out againe by a smaule gut. Ther is in it veri good trouttes and elys, and noe other fisch.

From Clarduy to Cragnaullinn is a good mile by est, and standing by a stone on the top of this hille I saw v. pollis by south west, wherof the biggest is Llinn Helignant, shorter Lignante, having no other fisch but trouttes and elys. One side of the pooles, [that] is the south side, hath trouttes as redde as salmon. The west side hath white, likewise as hath Llin Tyue. ## APPENDIX B

(See p. 90)

The following notes on Mona or Anglesey, which supply a want in the Itinerary, are from Leland's Collectanea, a folio MS. in the Bodleian Library, Top. Gen. c. 3, vol. iii. pp. 96, 97, 98 (printed by Hearne, De Rebus Britannicis Collectanea, second edition, London, 1774, vol. iv., pp. 85-90). The lists of places in both columns were first written out by a copyist, and afterwards were freely interlined and annotated by Leland; the pages are therefore not easy reading.

Leland's description, beginning in the middle of the Menai Straits, goes round the island, with excursions into the interior; parishes, chapels and towns are in the left-hand column; the right contains the places on or connected with sea or fresh water that are more or less near the places successively met with in the left column; they comprise ferries, havens, estuaries, islands and rocks, rivers, brooks, lakes and marshes or moors. There is no proof that Leland himself made the journey; but the Mr. Griffith referred to at the end (p. 134) may be the "Mr. Rouland Griffith" mentioned before, p. 90, as giving him information.

Leland's explanatory notes on the margin of p. 96 of the MS. are here put below the text, pp. 129, 130. His interpretations (sometimes erroneous) of names, generally written over the respective words, are here printed between ( ). In several cases Leland puts a corrective letter over the spelling of the copyist, as m over v, th over dd, w over o, but as the copyist (probably a Welshman) was more often right, these super letters are here disregarded; they may be seen in Hearne's edition. The words written by the copyist are printed in italic, those by Leland in roman type. I hope thus to have made these notes clear, and in some instances to have corrected errors in Hearne's reading. Dr. J. G. Evans' identifications are along the foot of each page.

* Richard Williams, alias Crumwelle, was nephew to Thomas Cromwell, servant to Henry VIII, and ancestor in the third generation to Oliver Cromwell, Lord Protector. See John Morley's Life of Cromwell, p. 1. I owe this identification to the Hon. Miss Bruce, herself of a Glamorganshire family, and claiming connection with the Cromwells.
